INTRODUCTION

This is a quarterly publication by the Embassy of Brazil in Nairobi which aims to create awareness of existing trade and investment opportunities between Brazil and Kenya, Uganda, Rwanda, Somalia and Burundi. This third quarter edition for 2017 sheds light on the Brazilian beef processing sector. We also introduce the Brazilian military sector, its players and avenues for investments. In addition, there is a short article on Bahia, Brazil’s fifth largest State by size and a major manufacturing centre.

BRAZIL’S TRADE AND INVESTMENT PROMOTION SYSTEM

The Department of Trade and Investment Promotion (DPR) is the unit of the Ministry of External Relations (MRE) responsible for developing and implementing Brazilian exports, foreign investment promotion policies and dissemination of national tourism products. In working with other organizations of the Federal Public Administration, DPR is responsible for matching up Brazilian exports to external demand and stimulating foreign investments. DPR also participates in the discussion and development of proposals for government policies to facilitate the entry and operations of Brazilian companies in external markets, with a view to transforming business opportunities into effective benefits for the country.

Through the extensive knowledge and experience of its staff in the field of international trade diplomacy, the Department also organizes events to create awareness and promote technological capacities abroad. To this end, it works in close partnership with representative entities of the private sector and companies engaged in the external market. The DPR operates five specialized units in Brasilia: Investment Division (DINV), Trade Intelligence Division (DIC), Trade Promotion Operations Division (DOC), Trade Promotion Programs Division (DPG), and Information Technology and Communication Centre (CTIC). DPR is responsible for over 100 Trade Promotion Sections (SECOMs) in over 78 countries operating in strategic posts in five continents located in 102 embassies and consulates around the world. SECOMs provide assistance to companies wishing to invest in Brazil or import Brazilian products and services. They are also responsible for gathering and disseminating information about local business and investment opportunities for Brazilian companies.
The Invest & Export Brazil (www.investexportbrasil.gov.br) website is a unique initiative of the Federal Government of Brazil, which brings together, on a single platform, information from various Brazilian agencies dedicated to trade promotion and investment attraction.

Invest & Export Brazil is an efficient, coordinated government website highlighting Brazil's business and investment opportunities, promoting foreign trade and attracting international investors to the country's dynamic domestic economy. This informative website is a joint effort of Brazil's Ministries of External Relations (MRE), Development, Industry and Foreign Trade (MDIC), Agriculture, Livestock and Food Supply (MAPA) and the Brazilian Trade and Investment Promotion Agency (APEX-Brasil).

The platform brings together information on investment and business opportunities, presenting, in a structured and thematic manner, Brazil's major industries and the institutions supporting them. The Trade and Investment Guide follows the international trend towards cooperating organizations sharing products and services in a single, standardized electronic environment. The innovative web interface enhances the user experience, optimizing access to information, quickly answering key questions and offering services that simplify import, export and investment activities.

The Brazilian national anthem portrays Brazil as “a giant by its own nature”. The country covers more than 8.5 million square kilometers, sharing an extensive border with more than ten neighboring countries, and has a coastline that stretches up to 7,408 kilometers along the Atlantic Ocean.

In order to exercise exclusive sovereignty over its territory, the territorial sea and its air space, as well as defend its citizens from any external threats, the Brazilian government, through the Ministry of Defense, established the National Defense Policy (Política Nacional de Defesa - PND). Guided by the principles enshrined in the Brazilian Constitution, the PND defines the main goals of Brazil's defense strategy to secure national interests. With vast natural, industrial and technological resources, Brazil understands that, in addition to co-operation with different nations, it must be prepared to deter potential threats from any part of the globe.

In the last few decades, the Ministry of Defense has employed initiatives aimed at decreasing its dependence on foreign defense equipment manufacturers by enhancing its domestic defense manufacturing capabilities. The Ministry has created legal frameworks that are broadly favorable to private investment in the sector. These include the Defense Equipment and Articulation Plan (PAED), the growth of the Defense Industrial Base (IDB) and the publication of Law 12.598/12 on purchase and development of defense equipment and systems. This move also favored the export agenda of defense products creating positive effects on the country's trade balance.

These measures have given support to the Brazilian defense industry to become a major exporter in a market which is rapidly increasing. According to World Bank Data, Brazil earned USD 109 million in 2016 in export of defense products.

Defense Equipment and Articulation Plan (PAED)

Through the Defense Equipment and Articulation Plan (PAED), the Ministry of Defense plans and executes the purchases associated with strategic defense projects, it also organizes and sustains, with these investments, the industrial defense base (IDB). The PAED works as a spiral of investments and productive specialization, capable of generating countless benefits. The framework that sustains the PAED also articulates the way in which the military organizations are organized and distributed territorially to fulfill their missions.
Brazilian Defense Products

IDB comprises companies certified by Ministry of Defense that have produced effective defense products used in air, land and marine situations. Some of these products include the powerful Astros 2020 MLRS for land operations, the Super Tucano Air Craft for air operations, Gladiator and the Man Sup for marine operations.

Gladiator II, fully built in Brazil by the Inbraltiltro Group has a running order weight of 8200 kg and a carrying capacity of 1000 kg. It offers flexibility to reconfigure the vehicle to serve missions such as reconnaissance, advanced observation post, command post, anti-tank, mortar, radar, workshop, ambulance and electronic warfare. It has six smoke grenade launchers arranged on the sides of the vehicle.

Astros 2020 MLRS

Astros II (Artillery Saturation Rocket System) is a self-propelled multiple rocket launcher (propelled in artillery batteries) produced in Brazil by Avibras Company. It features modular design and employs rockets with calibers ranging from 127 mm to 300 mm. It was developed on the basis of a Tectran VBT-2028 6×6 all-terrain vehicle for enhanced mobility.

Man Sup is an anti-ship missile that is under development by Avibras, Mectron, Atech and Omnisys for the Brazilian Navy. Its design aims for performance similar to MBDA MM40 Exocet Block III. Its propulsion will be by solid fuel, like the Exocet, but it will use a propulsive component that has slightly more force than the MM40 Block 1. The propulsion ensures about 70km or 5 minutes of burn. This range, however, can be extended to 75km.
The Super Tucano is designed for perfect precision. It incorporates fourth-generation avionics and weapons meant for counter-insurgency, close air support, and aerial missions in low-threat environments. It is designed to operate in high temperature and humidity.
Probably one of the most beloved States in Brazil, being a well-established touristic destination, Bahia can boast of having not only one of the most beautiful coastlines in the world but also a vibrant cultural life. Historically Bahia is considered the birthplace of Brazil, since the first Portuguese explorers docked in 1500 in the Southern part of the State, known as Porto Seguro.

Bordered by the Atlantic Ocean in the Northeastern part of Brazil, Bahia is the fifth largest State in Brazil and is home to 15.2 million inhabitants. The capital of Bahia is Salvador, a cosmopolitan city of 3 million inhabitants. It was the first Brazilian capital and is popular for its historic center with its unique 17th-century colonial architecture known as Pelourinho and declared a World Heritage Site by UNESCO.

The Atlantic Forest makes up the majority of Bahia's natural landscape. A chain of mountains, called Chapada Diamantina, crosses through the State and divides it into the Eastern and Western parts. The East consists of a splendid forest along the coast and has a fertile terrain for agriculture. The West, however, is arid and harsher in terms of its natural vegetation. Although arid, some areas in the West enjoy supply of water by irrigation systems from the São Francisco River.

Economically, the State is the 6th in consumer potential and is the largest economy in the Northeast. It is responsible for 33% of the region's GDP and more than 80% of the region's exports. Its location favors exports to the main world markets and the distribution of its production to many other parts of the country, since it is in the center of South America and Latin America and is bordered by 8 States of Brazil.

Bahia has a complex, sophisticated and fast growing economy. Bahia's agribusiness stands out on the national scene for its grain production, such as soya beans, maze and cotton, especially in the West. In the Southern part there is the production of eucalyptus and the manufacture of cellulose. The Southeastern part of the State has the production of cacao nut, fruits such as banana and passion fruit as well as coffee.

Industrial development in the State offers one of the many reasons to invest in Bahia, as listed below:

- Landulpho Alves Refinery (RLAM): the first refinery in Brazil, created in 1950, has an installed capacity at 323,000 barrels per day, making it the second largest in the country;
- Camaçari Industrial Complex: The largest integrated industrial complex in the Southern hemisphere, it is composed of more than 90 chemical and petrochemical companies, as well as other lines of business;
- In the automotive sector, the construction of the Ford complex in 2001 and the recent inauguration of the engine factory (first in the Northeast) stands out.
- Bahia is the third biggest producer of wind power in Brazil, with over 230 commercialized projects and USD 6.81 billion invested. The State already contracted multinational companies such as Alstom, Gamesa and Enel Green Power and is predicted to become the biggest wind power producer by 2020.
In the mining sector, Bahia stands out by the magnitude of the projects that have been announced, involving minerals such as iron, nickel, gold, bauxite, thallium, and even diamonds, using direct extraction technique.

Step By Step guide on Investing in Bahia

Once ready to invest in the State, either individually or as a corporation, the preliminary step is obtaining the procedure and the data necessary for investors and signing of the protocol of intentions with the State of Bahia. The most helpful department in this process is the Secretariat of Economic Development (SDE) through the link http://www.sde.ba.gov.br/

In order to set up an office, the requirements include filling of the area request register, acquisition of area (land or sheds) and the definitive confirmation of the area. The organ responsible for this is the Superintendence of Commercial and Industrial Development of Bahia (SUDIC), accessible through the link http://www.sudic.ba.gov.br

In company establishment, the entire procedure can be done through the Corporate SAC (http://www.sac.ba.gov.br/) of the State of Bahia. Companies receiving any foreign investment must report it through the electronic declaratory investment register (RDE), through www.bcb.gov.br with the Central Bank of Brazil.

Environmental licensing involves a prior analysis of the application by the Technical Commission of Environmental Guarantee (CTGA), under the Secretariat of Economic Development. The Institute of Environment and Water Resources (INEMA) is the body responsible for issuing environmental licensing in the State of Bahia, which includes location licensing, deployment licensing and operation licensing.

In the last few decades, Brazil has become a reference in terms of agribusiness production in the world. Agribusiness contributed 23 per cent to the total Brazilian GDP in 2015. Brazil is the world's largest producer of agribusiness related products, such as alcohol, sugar, coffee and orange juice. It is the second largest producer of soya and tobacco and ranks third in the world in the production of corn and fruits.

Brazil is also a major player as far as world market for meat is concerned. The country exports an average 262,000 containers of meat to 160 importing countries every year, generating revenue equivalent to 15% on all Brazilian exports. This places Brazil as a global leader in exports of chicken, beef and pork.

The main meat products from Brazil are beef, pork and poultry meat. The Brazilian production chain is so efficient that, according to information by the Ministry of Agriculture, national meat production is likely to supply 44.5% of the global demand for beef, 48.1% for poultry and 14.2% for pork by 2020.

In order to ensure the highest standards for its products, Brazil follows a series of international standards. Specific requirements on hygiene, sanitary slaughter and transportation are all an integral part of the agreements strictly complied with by the country's producers. In addition to federal and municipal government inspections in slaughterhouses, the markets with which Brazil has agreements also conduct their own periodic visits and directly inspect their suppliers.

In the last few decades, Brazil has developed a modern, efficient and safe meat chain to provide increasingly higher volumes of meat to the most demanding markets in the world. The country's animal protein is regarded as of high quality, and in most countries Brazilian meat is seen as a luxury good. In this sense, the good reputation of Brazilian meat works to cement Brazil as one of main meat providers globally.

Data related to contaminations or any other issues is relayed to the public. In 2016, out of 852,000 shipments of animal products, only 0.02% represented contaminations. With this performance, the Brazilian Federal Inspection System (SIF) seal has become widely recognizable in the international market as a guarantee of safety and quality. The system operates in over 5,000 establishments across the country, and products must meet a series of requirements and rules in order to receive a SIF seal.

Apex-Brasil (Brazilian Export Agency) and ABIEC (the Brazilian association of meat exporters) work in coordination with the ministry of agriculture to open new markets for Brazilian beef, especially meat in-natura, salted and industrialized meat. They contribute to strengthen the image of Brazilian beef as well as improve the perception of its quality in importing countries, expand the Brazilian participation in the world beef market, undertake technical clarifications in countries that present trade barriers to Brazilian beef and assist in internationalization of companies.

As of 2016, Brazil was home to 209 million head of cattle and grazing land of about 167m ha. The majority of cattle farmers are centred in the mid-West of the country especially in the States of Mato Grosso and Mato Grosso do Sul. The country is currently the second largest commercial beef producer in the world, behind the US. Chilled, fresh, and frozen sales account for 88% of Brazil's beef exports. Prepared/preserved beef accounts for the remaining 12%.

Brazilian beef industry generates an average of 360,000 direct jobs annually. In 2015, the total slaughtering amounted to 39.16 million head. Beef exports totaled 1.88 million tonnes in that year, accounting for 19.63% of total production. This was valued at USD 4.82 billion. Brazil's beef sector accounted for 14% of global beef output in 2015. The US represented 15% of total world output. As of January, 2017, beef meat had an average increase of 13% in the exported volume, compared to January of 2016.

Pork is produced in the Southern and Southeastern States of Brazil. Total pork exported in 2016 was 64.5 million tonnes, up from 2015 when 63.7 million tonnes of pork were exported. In 2017 alone, 27.2 million tonnes have so far been exported between January and May, placing Brazil among the top four pork producers and exporters, along with China, the European Union and the United States.

Brazil also is one of the top three largest producers of chicken meat globally, along with China and the United States. In 2015, Brazilian chicken production reached 13.14 million tons. Out of this production, approximately 67% remained in the domestic market, ending 2015 with 4.3 million tons of chicken meat shipped to more than 150 countries. As of January 2017, the accumulated revenue had a value of US $ 1.6 Billion. The result represents a growth of 5.2% compared to the previous month and 23.4% in comparison with the month of January 2016.
